

Best Of DyingWords - Book 3: Provoking Thoughts on Writing from a Retired Homicide Detective and Forensic Coroner

There's no such thing as the right way to write, so says Garry Rodgers, best-selling crime writer and signature blogger at the Huffington Post, in this collection of his best 43 blog posts on the craft of writing from the popular blogging site, DyingWords.net. In Book Three of a three-part series titled Best of DyingWords, Provoking Thoughts on Life, Death, and Writing from a Retired Homicide Detective and Forensic Coroner, Garry and invited guests from professional writing and publishing disciplines provoke thoughts on fun and fascinating writer reference topics such as true crime writing, fiction, thrillers, best sellers, blogging, self-publishing, marketing, and the writing business. Best of DyingWords, Provoking Thoughts on Writing is far more than a collection of academic articles by bloggers' best writers and thought leaders. Its arranged and written in a style unique among blogging books, yet contains at its core the positive mental attitude about life success formula that's central to Napoleon Hill's classic motivational book, Think and Grow Rich. Provoking Thoughts on Writing is a real writer's reference far more than what you find in most blogging books. Garry Rodgers covers the personal skills that make for great blogging and writing voice, language structure, application of senses, use of grammar, effective communication devices, and personal development. Never one to shy from the facts, or to question them too, Garry has lived the life he blogs about. Garry Rodgers is a retired Homicide Detective and Forensic Coroner, now bestselling crime writer and blogger at the Huffington Post. In younger years, Garry was a sniper with Royal Canadian Mounted Police Emergency Response Teams and was trained by the British Special Air Services (SAS). Best of DyingWords Provoking Thoughts on Life is a cant-put-down read. Its sectioned to be skimmed like blog posts and the articles are grouped into categories of craft, social media, networking, the publishing business, health and happiness, and self help through applying your positive mental attitude.
